

Sena Cases announces new product line for iPhone

Published by Edward Kirk on July 11, 2007 - 1:20am. News

Sena Cases, a company known for its hand-stitched leather portable device cases, has announced five new cases made for the iPhone.

Their first case, and probably the most inventive and ingenious of the five, is the Sena Dockable, and it is the first case to allow you to place your iPhone in the dock while remaining in its case. Other features include a magnetic closure, velvet lining, European Napa leather construction, a ratchet belt clip with removable tab, and openings for the earphone, speaker, and camera. It sells for US$52.

The second case they are launching, the MagnetFlipper, sports a hinged bottom and magnetic fastening system at the top to allow easy access to the iPhone's screen, as well as allowing access to all the phone's ports and buttons. It sells for US$52 as well.

Their third case, LeatherSkin, is a form-fitting leather case, built specifically to provide a tight, sleek fit for your iPhone. It runs at US$42.

Their fourth case, the Elega Pouch, is a standard, holster-style case. It sports such features as a ratchet belt clip to fasten conveniently to your waist, and soft velvet lining to cushion your iPhone. It sells for around US$39.99-49.99.

Their fifth case, the UltraSlim Pouch is a thin, leather and micro suede jacket for the iPhone, and they claim it's the sleekest and slimmest case ever built for a mobile device. It sells for US$29.

All of the Sena Cases come in a variety of colors to suit your individual taste. As of yet, the Elega Pouch is the only pouch that is currently available. The other cases are available for pre-order and are expected to ship on August 1.
