New iPhone cases from OC's Sena Cases

July 16th, 2007 · Post a Comment · posted by Gadgetress

Cute case alert: Sena Cases in Tustin just released some iPhone cases in girly colors with nice sleek lines to match the Apple iPhone's style. Makes me wish I stood in line with Sonya to buy one... Sena Cases Owner Ramsey Oten says that his team of "leather technologists" searched the globe for the finest leather.

Five new cases in all — and most with special pre-order prices — starting with...

The Dockable: Sena says this is the only case that allows the case to stay on while the iPhone is docked. Material is "fine European Napa leather" with soft velvet lining inside. There's a belt clip and removable tag. Plus openings for the earphone, speaker and camera. Price: $52, on special for $41.60.

The MagnetFlipper: Cover flips open with the flick of the thumb so you can answer the iPhone. Comes in 14 colors. Price: $52, though if you pre-order, Sena is selling it for $41.60.

Elega Pouch: Another slim case with a belt clip, extra padding and velvet lining. Sena says it's made of shock-absorbent padding and it has speaker holes. Comes in 13 colors. Price: $40 to $50

LeatherSkin: The usual-looking form fitting case with opening for the phone's large screen. Made of ultra-thin premium leather and comes in 14 colors. Price: $42 but a pre-order special has it at $33.60.

Ultra Slim Pouch: If this were any slimmer, it'd be a skin. But this offers a bit more protection since it's made of leather and has micro suede lining. Target user? Guys who want to carry their iPhone in their pocket. Four colors available. Price: $29, and on pre-order special for $23.20.
